Her veil fell from a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses. Miss Hallinger wore a handsome gown of pink chiffon and satin and carried pink roses. The bridegroom is a graduate of Pacific university, in the class of 1932, and the bride of Willamette university. The romance had its beginning several years ago when they were both in the first year in Pacific university. After their wedding journey north, they will reside at Gray's Harbor. ## INSURANCE COMPANY REINSURES PATRONS

State Insurance Commissioner Ferguson announced the American Life & Accident Insurance company of Portland had reinsured its accident and health business in the First National Assurance Society of America, of Tacoma.

The company sometime ago reinsured its life business with the Western Union company. The action was urged by Mr. Ferguson. Speaking of the transaction, Mr. Ferguson said:

"The First National Life was granted a license to transact a life and an accident insurance business in Oregon on the date of the transfer and takes over the business and agency force of the American Life & Accident Insurance company."

"The new company entering the state has been transacting business for six years in its home state and has a well-established business. It has a stock capital of $200,000, with nearly $500,000 surplus, making a good financial showing. The officers of the American Life & Accident Insurance company will proceed to liquidate the company and its affairs will probably be closed up within the next year."

DRUG FIENDS GET DESPERATE.

Rochester, N. Y., July 23.—Driven desperate by their inability to purchase heroin, cocaine, morphine and other habit-forming drugs since July 1, when the new state law prohibiting the same of those drugs became effective, eight victims of drugs, all young men, applied to the police today to be locked up.

Several of the men declared that if they were not placed in confinement they feared they would either commit murder or suicide. Steps have been taken to open a hospital for the detention and treatment of those victims.

LAND FRAUD TRIAL IS DRAGGING SLOWLY

Minard Swears He Thinks a Couple of the Agents Who Sold These Lands Were Crooks, and Is Probably Right.

Portland, Ore., July 24.—That two of the men who filed applications for locations on the Oregon & California land grant as agents through him, were "crooks" either directly or indirectly, and he had his suspicions of some of the others, W. F. Minard, principal of the three defendants now on trial on mail fraud charges in Judge Bean's division of the federal court, testified today. E. J. Sellers and J. W. Logan, of Tacoma, are being tried with Minard.

"For how many of these locations—these agents scattered about the country—did you file the applications they sent you between 1908 and 1913?" Reames asked.

"Between 30 and 50, I think," Minard answered.

That investigation of the government into the transactions of the locators started as early as 1910 was a development of today, Minard said, that Special Agent G. K. Randall, who is now assisting Reames in the prosecution, had visited him at his offices in 1910, asking him for a statement, and taking some of his literature and some correspondence.

DYNAMITED SAFE AND "EARNED" $500

Troutdale, Ore., July 24.—Using a comforter to deaden the sound, two robbers early today blew open the safe in the general merchandise store of Aaron Fox with nitro-glycerine and escaped with $1,900 in cash and jewelry worth $500. Approximately $1,400 worth of stamps left in the safe by the postmaster were not touched.

The thieves gained entrance through a rear window.

It is believed they escaped down the Columbia river in a launch, which, with a rowboat, was missing today.

Most of the money taken was in silver.

THINKS THE GIRL WAS KATHERINE WINTERS

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 24.—George Icenogle, 21, was firmly convinced today that a girl he met on the tracks of the Iron Mountain railroad July 14 last, was Katherine Winters, the missing daughter of Dr. William A. Winters, of New Castle, Ind. The girl, Icenogle said, was carrying a bucket of water. He met her near Little Rock, Ark. She asked for a pencil and paper, he said, and wrote: "Please come and get me, papa, for a I am well. Come or send for me—Katherine Winters."

"When I first met the girl," Icenogle said, "she was walking along the tracks 10 miles south of Little Rock. I told her I would take her to her father, but a man wearing a red shirt strove me away. He looked like a gypsy."

Shown Katherine's picture, Icenogle said he was positive in his identification. He sent the note to Dr. Winters at New Castle.

KNOW NOTHING ABOUT GOV. ERMOR PINKHAM'S RECALL

Washington, July 24.—In Secretary of the Interior Lane's absence it was stated both at the White House and the department that nothing was known beyond what the newspapers published of the forwarding of a demand from Honolulu for the recall of Governor Pinkham of Hawaii or of the adoption by the territorial democratic committee of a plank condemning the governor as undemocratic. It was stated that, at any rate, no order had been issued for his recall and that no arrangement had been made for a conference. Until Lane returned, it was added, nothing of the kind would be done.

ROOSEVELT CAN PUT TRIAL OFF INDEFINITELY

New York, July 24.—"Of course Colonel Roosevelt can delay a trial for from 18 months to two years if he cares to adopt obstructive tactics," was the remark today of Attorney James S. Evans, who notified the colonel Thursday of the $50,000 libel suit brought against him by Chairman William Barnes of the Republican state committee.

Barnes was anxious, Evans added, for a speedy trial. The colonel had given no indication of his intentions. Nor did he seem at all ruffled by the suit.

"Let him sue," was his only comment when Evans called on him at 60 West Bay. "I've never said anything couldn't prove."

All But Madero's Slayings.

Laredo, Tex., July 24.—General Carranza today advocated leniency in "treatment of the conquered by the victorious constitutionalists." His statement was made in a speech at a banquet tendered by Victoria citizens.

General Carranza said it must never be forgotten that all Mexicans are brothers, but declared he could not extend the hand of brotherhood to those directly implicated in the deaths of Francisco Madero and Pino Suarez. No leniency, he said, could be expected for those who took an active part in overthrowing the constitutional government of Mexico and the murder of its president and vice-president.

The law would be observed strictly, he said, and those charged with participating in the crime would be judged according to the law.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

How Arthur Saved the Little Girl.

DADDY had promised Jack that when he was a great big boy he was to have a sailing boat.

"So in the meantime Jack read about boats, he studied pictures of boats, he talked about boats, he tried to make toy boats, and he used to want a boat story almost every evening. One evening he said:

"A boat story, please, daddy."

Both Evelyn and daddy looked at each other with a knowing expression, and then daddy began:

"There was once a boy who was very fond of all things pertaining to the water. He loved to swim, to dive, to paddle a canoe, to sail a boat—in fact, he loved everything that was on or in the water."

"A number of people would say that they were sure he spent too much time in the water; that, of course, it must be very bad for him (although he always looked very well) and that anyway they thought he wasted too much time."

"But his mother and daddy always allowed him to spend just as much time as he wanted to on the water. They knew that it made him fine and strong, and they were glad that he was so fond of it. Besides, he worked very hard in school all winter and made splendid marks, so his family thought that he deserved the rest and the outdoor exercise."

"One day one of the lake schooners was making its daily trip. This boy had paddled in his canoe to the head of the lake and was coming back home on the boat, for that had just made a nice length paddle."

"The boat was crowded with passengers. Many of them knew this boy, whose name by the way, was Arthur, very well, and many of them were the ones who had said that Arthur spent too much time on the water."

"Suddenly some one gave a cry:

"Somebody overboard! Oh, oh!"

"And then every one became very much excited and cried and screamed. Arthur had not seen the person go overboard, but he rushed to the end of the boat where all the people had hurried and saw in the water just going under a little child in a white dress."

"She has been under twice now," said some one.

"Arthur didn't say a word, nor did he scream, but in one dive he was in the water and had grabbed hold of the little girl. They were soon hauled in."

"And the people who had thought Arthur spent too much time in the water looked on, ashamed that all they had done was to scream, while Arthur had gone in the water and had saved the child's life."
